I wish to present my transcriptions of the loved ones buried at Karshner Cemetery. It is located about a mile from State Route 56 on Big Pine Rd. (near Haynes, Ohio). The nearest town being Laurelville, Ohio. This cemetery is not marked at the highway, but as you drive on Big Pine Rd., from route 56, watch the hillside elevations on the left side of road, as the memorial stones are visible through the trees. Turn at the next driveway, this driveway is marked Holbrook, follow the pine tree lined drive to a metal farm gate. Sadly, there are no signs to mark this cemetery, however it is marked on local map of the township. It appears that in early days, this cemetery was associated with the local U.B. Church, located nearby on Big Pine Rd, near the intersection of route 56. The cemetery remains in active use, as there are recent burials present. The land surrounding this cemetery is owned by Clayton and Carol Holbrook whom I had the opportunity to meet on 19 September 1999. They have an authentic log cabin on their property, located just to the left of the cemetery, this structure dates back to 1803 and is rich with local historical connections. This cemetery is nicely cared for by Township Trustees, and lies on a gentle sloping area above the township road. The Holbrook residence is located nearby and plenty of parking space is available. Please don't block the driveway to their residence. Wish to extend my thanks to the Holbrooks for their hospitality & kindness in sharing additional information about individuals buried in this cemetery.

All information read directly from the stones will appear in standard text. Any information found within brackets[] will indicate my personal observations, knowledge, and/or descriptions of conditions and not information found on stones. All information within brackets with a * symbol indicates additional information given to me by the kindness of David Frey, who has been researching ancestral family groups of this area for many years. Also want to thank my son Arthur Sizelove for his assistance and help in reading both Karshner and Haynes Cemeteries. Our readings of this cemetery, for the sake of bearing, start at the back row. They are read from left to right, in rows starting at lowest elevation, towards highest. The last stone being the one at the top of hill and nearest gate fence. Additional information was given to me by the kindness of George Hunter on 20 December 1999.  Updates included additional information within these below mentioned enumerations of the Roby, Peddycoart, and Hunter families. His information source being stated as: Hocking Co. Library, 1850 U.S.Census Report Harrison Co., Ohio and his personal research.

Robert M. Sizelove, Sr. is solely responsible for the transcriptions contained in this article. I have been careful, but make no warranties to being 100% accurate. There are many old stones, in various states of deterioration. Some are broken and /or weathered to a point that makes transcription of data difficult. Use this information as a tool, but don't substitute it for state or county records and documentation, when available. If you have any documented information that improves upon the transcriptions provided here, which were completed on 19 September 1999, please let me know and I will update this article.
